DAILY WEATHER MAPS ARE HELPFUL TO FARMERS

Few industries in the country are more directly dependent upon weather conditions than farming. Barometers and official forecasts in daily papers serve a good purpose, but they are not as valuable for the farmer as the daily weather maps issued by the Weather Bureau of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The weather map is mailed immediately after the morning forecast is telegraphed. On this map the salient features of current weather conditions throughout the country are represented by lines and symbols. The map also contains the temperature, precipitation and the air pressure from all the observing stations and a brief explanation of the main features presented by the map. Maps issued from about 100 of the larger stations.

The station at Madison is prepared to send weather maps to the country stores, banks, creameries and cheese factories in all parts of the state. All such places that desire to keep the weather maps posted each day for the benefit of their patrons may secure the service free of charge by writing to E. L. Miller, U. S. Weather Bureau, Madison.

"The symbols on the maps are easy to learn," Mr. Miller states, "and the general movements of the weather may be followed easily by comparing the maps issued on successive days. Explanations of weather maps and a special bulletin of the Weather Bureau, No. 467, on forecasting weather, may be obtained by writing to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C."

A. L. Hutchinson, at one time editor of the Weyauwega Chronicle is going to publish a magazine called "The Trail." Mr. Hutchinson published the book some years ago under the title of "The Limit of Wealth," in which he maintained that no man was entitled to a greater accumulation of wealth than one million dollars, and the publication of the magazine will be to set forth his arguments on the limit of wealth. There is no question but what the magazine will appeal to quite a number of people in this world notwithstanding the fact that he has set the limit of wealth at such a negligible figure as one million dollars.

LARGE ELECTRIC ENGINES WILL REPLACE STEAM

The biggest electric locomotives in the world are being delivered this week to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway System.

They form the advance guard of fifty huge electric engines to be used by the road in operating 310 miles of its transcontinental line between Lewiston, Mont., 4,163 feet above sea level, and Avery, Idaho, elevation 2,494 feet. They will also climb the Rocky Mountain summit, 6,300 feet, and the Belt Mountain summit, 5,700 feet.

When these giant engines go into operation as they will do some time in November, hauling heavy freight and passenger trains through the steep grades of Montana and Idaho, the most ambitious electrification project ever conceived will have been completed.

The new locomotives are of great interest because they are the first to be constructed for road use. They are designed to carry as high a potential as 3,000 volts. They weigh 260 tons each and have a continuous capacity greater than that of any steam or electric locomotive ever built.

One of these machines can "make" a train weighing 2,500 tons up one percent grade with its 3,440 horsepower and make it go down the same grade at a two percent grade. These monsters are 112 feet 8 inches long. There is nothing about them to suggest the steam locomotives which they will ultimately displace in both freight and passenger service. The design is such as to save track wear and tear by minimizing the vertical and horizontal blows of the drive wheels through use of a separate motor, twin geared to each of the eight pairs of drivers. The drive wheels are 62 inches in diameter.

They are equalized in pairs on each side so that each pair of wheels is independent. The cab extends for nearly the full length of the locomotive. Two men constitute the operating crew. The other is there for emergency and to learn his trade. Here are some of the most striking advantages of the electric locomotive.

It operates with the highest efficiency in the coldest weather when steam locomotives often freeze up. It returns by "regeneration" a large part of the power used in running up hill during the corresponding run down hill.

It requires inspection only once in every 2,000 miles of travel, whereas the steam locomotive must be overhauled at the end of each division. It uses no coal, requires no water and has no ashes to dump.

The electric locomotive has no boiler and will run indefinitely at a uniform speed. It reduces roundhouse tinkering to the minimum and handles uniform tons of freight with ease. It does away with fuel trains and clears the tracks for traffic that pays dividends.

The best steam locomotive has to be overhauled after running 100 or 125 miles, whereas the immunity of the electric engine from this necessity—a heavy advantage in operating efficiency.

A steam locomotive waiting at a division point consumes eighty percent of the fuel it used in actual service, whereas the electric locomotive when idle consumes no power. The electric locomotive is an element of the highest importance, especially in mountainous country where double tracking is often impossible.

The direct current electric locomotive, in fact, bids fair to revolutionize railway transportation methods, because, while the "juice" to be used in the open stretch of electrification is obtained from a power house, the electric power and fed to locomotives of the new type more economically than it can be used direct in the production of steam power.

The plan of operation includes the general use of a locomotive at each end of a train on up grades approximately thirty-five miles long over the electrified section of the road. On down grades only the head engine is used, the regenerative braking—that is regenerating power on its reverse and returning it to the wires to be used in pulling the following train.

These locomotives are geared for passenger service to haul trains of 800 tons at sixty miles an hour. The stretch of road to be used by the new engines, extending from Lewiston to Avery, where there are long distance grades of from one and one half to two percent, will be doubled in capacity by their own use, according to the engineering company.

The railway company expects to achieve the same results as though it had double tracked its line over the mountain divisions. It is believed that the road will get back the cost of the electrification about $15,000,000 in five years, or at the rate of 20 per cent per annum.

Gasoline and Booze Won't Mix. It seems incredible that it should take so many years and so many accidents to convince the public that gasoline and booze won't mix. A machine full of gasoline and a man full of booze makes a dangerous combination that menaces not only the life and safety of the driver, but the life and safety of every pedestrian that chances to venture on a highway. Driving a machine while intoxicated is fraught with such great dangers that it ought to be a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

Public safety and the common rights of the sober and law abiding public demand a deliverance from the whiskey and beer soaked marauders who are liable to intercept one on any highway with all the possibilities of serious or fatal injuries and which deprive one of the feeling of safety and the national police regulations.

Modern Fable of the Young Man Who Thought that He Saw Handwriting on the Wall, but Found He Had Another Guess Coming.

Once upon a time there was a clerk who thought that he had been ordained by a Supreme Power to become an Actor.

During a fit of temporary insanity he had been invited to take part in an amateur production that had been put on for the benefit of the local chapter of the W. C. T. U., and notwithstanding the fact that he had been in the fore part of the first act, he could not get it off his mind.

Some of his friends thought he would recover from the attack in time, and thought it was like a case of diphtheria or Whooping Cough, and that after it had hit him that he would be all right again, but the disease seemed to take a chronic form and he was soon an object of pity to all his acquaintances.

He couldn't expect to carry blanks for an ordinary barnstormer, but that never got into his brain, so he rambled merrily on his way, acting (mostly) like a dog gone fool, and that after it had hit him that he would be all right again, but the disease seemed to take a chronic form and he was soon an object of pity to all his acquaintances.

After taking part in having spent a week on the road with a ten, twenty and thirty combination, he began to let his hair grow and wear long flowing tresses, and to do other things that would impress the public with your ability along histrionic lines.

He made his bluff so strong that he actually conned some of the people about town into believing that he was the second coming of Joe Jefferson or Edwin Booth or some other one of those old timers who specialized in Shakespeare or that sort of thing. They thought that all he needed was a little money as a starter and that he would do the rest.

Many a young man is held back from having a good time in this life because of the lack of a little money, and our hero was no exception to the general rule.

So they passed around the hat and got together a bunch of money, and the result was that our hero was soon out on the road with a Musical Show. The name was a misnomer, however, for the only thing that he had was a little money, and our hero was no exception to the general rule.

While the show went broke after a short but disgraceful career our hero would be actor had spent more money than he could have paid back during the rest of his natural life, had been inclined to do so, which he was. When last heard from his wife was living with her Ma and the Hero, after borrowing a quarter and getting a hair cut, was given a job as Shipping Clerk at nine dollars per week by his friends.

Moral—Even a First Class Actor has a certain amount of brains, even though there are people who have disputed this fact.

Nogalski-Steward. Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at the St. Lawrence Catholic church occurred the wedding of Veronica Edith Nogalski to Alfred Steward. The bride wore a gown of white net over crepe du chên veils and carried a bouquet of pink roses, the groom wearing the conventional black. Miss Marie Edith of Milwaukee, a niece of the bride was the maid of honor and was dressed in pink and carried pink carnations.

Mr. Victor Burigame of Ripon, a cousin of the groom, acted as best man. Kate Walloch was bridesmaid. Miss Walloch wore pink and carried pink carnations. After the ceremony the guests returned to the bride's home where a luncheon was served. The decorations were autumn leaves and cut flowers with ferns.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Gable and daughter Ruth, of Appleton, and Frank Nogalski and Mrs. Kate Gable of Milwaukee and Mr. Victor Burigame of Ripon.

After the wedding the bride and groom departed for a wedding tour to Dakota, Milwaukee and Ripon after which they will make their home in this city where the groom is employed.

The Dave Cole family have returned from Babcock where they have been the past two months. Henry Pellersells came up from the Milwaukee Soldiers home last week and spent several days in this city visiting with friends. Mr. Pellersells was looking after his property in this city, having some improvements made about his residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Carrington left on Monday for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will visit for a time. Mr. Carrington will visit the San Francisco exposition and later Mr. and Mrs. Carrington will go to Cripple Creek, Col., to visit. They expect to be gone about a year on their tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Lyon and Geo. Phillips returned on Friday from their trip to Washington, D. C., where they attended the National Convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Mr. Lyon was elected president of the society and had a good time generally. Mr. Phillips was elected secretary and had a good time generally.

Wm. Boehning, of Marshfield, has brought suit against the Northwestern Railway company for $10,000. Boehning claims he was put off the train near Stratford because he could not find the ticket he had purchased, notwithstanding the fact that he offered the conductor cash for his fare, also that the brakeman kicked him and broke his shoulder when he tried to get back on the train again.

INDIAN DIES FROM INJURIES TO HEAD

Cornelius Johnson, the Indian who was brought to this city and placed in the Riverview hospital about a week previous to his death, died Saturday morning from injuries to the head which he received when he was struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion, died Saturday morning from injuries to the head which he received when he was struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion, died Saturday morning from injuries to the head which he received when he was struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion.

The story told of the affair is to the effect that several of the Indians had been to town that evening and bought a quantity of liquor, when they got back to the Riverview hospital, where they were confined, they were drinking and one of them was struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion, died Saturday morning from injuries to the head which he received when he was struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion.

The injured Indian was brought to this city soon after he had been struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion, died Saturday morning from injuries to the head which he received when he was struck on the head by a baseball bat in the hands of a companion.

An inquest was held on the remains of Johnson on Saturday afternoon and it was found that he had died from the injuries to his head. After the death of Johnson, Reich was apprised of the fact, and after some talk he consented to plead guilty to the charge of murder in the third degree, which he did on Tuesday, and was sentenced to serve seven years in the state prison.

Johnson, the man who was killed, was a man about 22 years of age while Reich is a man of 50 or thereabouts.

WINTER TO BE COLDEST SINCE THE CIVIL WAR. Prof. A. L. Snyder of Cranston, Ga., famous weather prognosticator, predicts the coming winter will be the coldest since the Civil war. It will be a "hundred-year" winter, he says, for there will be many heavy snow storms in various parts of the country, followed by cold waves that will reach from coast to coast.

One cold wave will sweep the country the latter part of December and it will be so cold that many will think that Peary has left open all doors to the north pole. The cold wave that will reach far into the south, December will be cold, wet, and stormy.

The professor advises all to prepare for a long hard, cold winter. "I am hitting the bull's eye right along now," said the famous Georgian, as he made a casual survey of the local skies.

Twelve Million Problems. There are said to be in these United States 12,000,000 foreigners who are neither citizens nor would-be citizens, they have no naturalization papers.

According to the Dumba disclosures and the laws of who knows these people are still under the laws of the country from which they came. They can be tried and even put to death for things they do in this country supposed to be against the interests of their home government.

If this be so, they may be commanded to do things, as well as called upon to stop doing things. They might have laws over their heads which they could be called to active service of almost any sort in this country.

The German laws and probably those of some other countries—Japan for instance—permit naturalization papers to be given to anyone who will take the oath of allegiance to the United States, and still remain citizens of the foreign government to which they renounce all allegiance with uplifted hand.

This is the strongest argument against our immigration policy which has yet come to the surface of things. We used to think that if they fled from things, they disliked to things they loved. This is no longer so. The great employers of cheap labor have herded men to this country like slaves, and have induced upon us a new and great problem—to speak within bounds, 12,000,000 separate and distinct problems.—State Journal.

Robert Nash, Postmaster. The high school students turned out Friday evening and held a jolly party at the home of Mrs. Nash. They had a bonfire, sang songs, yelled and woke up things in general.

Robt. Cornfield has traded the old H. A. Crance farm of 200 acres in the town of Grand Rapids to Nelson Johnson, taking in trade his house and two lots near the Lincoln school. Mr. Johnson has taken possession of the farm and Mr. Cornfield is occupying the Johnson home. The transfer was made thru Ed. and Seth Spatford.

Co., during the past thirteen years, and who for several years past has been secretary of that institution, has tendered his resignation, same to take place November 1st. Mr. Schnabel has accepted a responsible position with the Wisconsin Trust Company and expects to leave the latter part of the month for St. Louis to take charge of his new position.

STEINKER CONFECTIONERY STORE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire was discovered in the Steinkers confectionery store, located between the Steinkers and Brainer Bros. about 10:30 o'clock Friday night, and before anything could be done to extinguish the flames the entire interior of the building was burned out, and the stock destroyed.

When the fire was discovered an alarm was turned in at once, but the whole interior of the building was in flames, and the firemen did not get work to contain it to the building where it originated.

As it was the adjoining building occupied by Brainer Bros. was damaged by the fire, the firemen did not get work to contain it to the building where it originated.

It is supposed that the fire originated from the stove pipe, although Mrs. Steinkers had left the store only a half an hour before the fire was discovered, and when it was found that the fire was in the stove.

The exhibits of farm products at the fair, which were on display at the Johnson & Hill store, which opened the latest thing of its kind ever held in this city, and the fine specimens of vegetables that were on display, were all destroyed by the fire.

The season of 1915 has generally been considered a poor one for all crops except grain, but the specimens that have been brought in to the exhibit would indicate that there were some things that had escaped the early frost.

Probably the thing that attracts the most attention is the display of apples. There are almost a hundred samples in the lot and many of them present a handsome appearance. There are also some nice samples of vegetables, which are on display, and the fine specimens of vegetables that are to be found among the exhibit.

This was an off year for corn notwithstanding which fact there are a number of samples, many of which are fairly well enough to make good feed. Taken altogether, the exhibit is a most creditable one, and equal to what is seen at many county fairs.

Attending the Convention. Postmaster R. L. Nash left on Monday for Appleton to attend the Annual Convention of Wisconsin Postmasters, which commenced in that city on Tuesday, and will take up two days. Congressman Thomas Knapp of Green Bay will deliver the principal address at the evening session. The report of the secretary and treasurer will be given by Postmaster Robert L. Nash of this city and an address will be given by Post Office Inspector George P. Reidenbach of Green Bay.

The entertainment provided for the Postmasters included an automobile ride about the city of Appleton and a luncheon and snicker. Wednesday October 13th, will be devoted to business matters and the reports of the Postmasters will be made and new officers elected.

PROTEST TO TURKEY ARABIC CASE ENDED

UNITED STATES TELLS SULTAN TO STOP SLAUGHTER OF ARMENIANS.

NO AMERICANS ARE AFFECTED

Washington Cable Envoy to Deliver Message to Sultan—Americans Are Anxious by Slaughter of Christians Says Note From State Department.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople was instructed by cable on Monday to inform the Turkish minister of foreign affairs that public sentiment in the United States was so stirred by the reports of the Armenian atrocities that only the massacre ceased to excite the people of Turkey would be threatened.

Officials made it clear that this message, though its importance was by no means minimized, did not threaten a break in diplomatic relations. Turkey already has let it be known that she will not permit interference by any foreign power with her so-called "Armenian policy."

As American life or property has not been affected, the United States government, without submitting an official protest, merely informs Turkey of the effect continued Armenian atrocities would have upon the American people.

Secretary Lansing said that no representations had been made to Germany regarding the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks.

CHICAGO BARS CLOSE SUNDAY

Mayor Thompson Notifies City Council of Action—Lid' Goes On Next Sabbath.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Sunday saloons in Chicago are doomed. Mayor Thompson by executive order will enforce the state Sunday closing law. He made this announcement in a message sent to the city council on Monday. The message came as a complete surprise and caused a tremendous sensation. Aldermen and spectators who crowded the galleries were thunder-struck.

The mayor said the opinion of the corporation counsel was that existing city ordinances permitting under certain restrictions, saloons to remain open on Sunday could not nullify the state law.

In view of this opinion Mayor Thompson said he believed it to be his duty to enforce the law, and accordingly he would order all saloons to close on Sunday. Presumably the order becomes effective next Sunday.

VON BERNSTORFF GIVES NOTE

In this President Wilson's Demands Are Upheld and Future Safety of Noncombatants in the "War Zone" Assured.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Safety of non-combatants in the naval "war zone" is assured. Washington officialdom declares President Wilson has won a signal victory for the principles for which he has contended in the submarine warfare controversy with Germany.

Germany, through Count Johann von Bernstorff, her ambassador, disavowed the sinking of the liner Arabic and promised the Washington government it would indemnify it for the loss of all American lives. Germany has yielded on all points brought to its attention by the United States.

Secretary Lansing on Tuesday gave out the text of a letter received from Count von Bernstorff, which was as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Secretary: 'Prompted by the desire to reach a satisfactory agreement with regard to the Arabic incident, my government has given me the following instructions:

"The orders issued by his majesty the emperor to the commanders of the German submarines, of which the Arabic was one, were to sink only merchant ships. The Arabic was not intended to sink the submarine. The attack of the submarine was undertaken against the instructions issued to the commander. His majesty disavows this act and has notified Commander Schneider accordingly.

"Under these circumstances my government is prepared to pay an indemnity for American lives lost on the Arabic. I am authorized to negotiate with you about the amount of this indemnity.

"I remain, my dear Mr. Lansing, yours sincerely
"J. VON BERNSTORFF."

Sign Number Twenty-One

By DORIS ADA MATTESON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

Tom Stibbs was just setting the last of a sixteen-sheet poster in place on Sign 21 of the Universal Advertising Syndicate, when the ladder under him slipped. He looked down quickly.

"Hello, there!" he shouted. "What-eh, you about?"

A man had come rushing around the corner at a high rate of speed. As he turned it he glanced back at Stibbs. This caused a stumble. His hat fell off. The next moment he was up the ladder. He was a sturdy, well-built individual, for like an acrobat he pulled himself up alongside of the bill poster. Then he grabbed the long flaring paste brush from his hand and gave him a blow directly under the chin. Tom Stibbs went heading to the inside edge of the sidewalk, uttered a groan and slipped into insensibility.

SYNOPSIS.

Cazlet, on the steamer Kaiser Fritz, homeward bound from Australia, crisis out in his sleep that Henry Craven, who ten years before had ruined his father, is dead and finds that his father, who was a miser, has left him a fortune. He knows Craven and also knows that Craven's dream second night, he thinks of doing a little amateur detective work on the case himself. In the train to town he meets a woman, who is the daughter of a man who was a miser, and who has been released from prison.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

Toyed looked disconcerted and distressed, but at the same time frankly puzzled. He apologized more than he read, with almost ingenuously, as if he were a child, and he was plain, himself in a single sentence, and that told more than the rest of his straightforward eloquence put together.

"If a man had done you down like that, wouldn't you want to kill him the very moment you came out, Cazlet?" The creature of impulse was off at a tangent. "I'd forgive him if he did it, too!" he exclaimed. "I'd move heaven and earth to save him, guilty or not guilty. Wouldn't you in my place?"

"I don't know," said Hilton Toye. "It depends on the place you're in, I guess." And the keen dark eyes came drilling into Cazlet's skull like augers.

"I thought I told you," he explained impatiently. "We were in the office together; he was good to me, winked at the business hours I was inclined to keep, let me down lighter in every way than I deserved. You may say I was part of his game. But I take people as I find them. And now, as I told you, Scruton was on thousands of times more stoned against than sinning."

"Are you sure?" He knew it at the time.

"I didn't. I told you so the last night."

Well, I mustn't ask questions," said Hilton Toye, and began folding up his newspaper with even more than his usual deliberation.

"Oh, I'll tell you," cried Cazlet ungraciously. "It's my own fault for telling you so much. It was in a letter from Scruton himself that I heard the whole thing. I'd written to him—toward the end—suggesting things. He managed to get an answer through the prison authorities. And—and that's all. I've come home just when I did, concluded Cazlet; that's why I didn't wait till after shearing. He's been through about enough, and I've had more luck than I deserved. I meant to take him back with me, to keep the books on our station, if you want to know."

Toye let his newspaper slide to the floor. "But that was fine," he exclaimed simply. "That's as fine an action as I've heard of in a long time."

"It comes off," said Cazlet in a gloomy voice.

"Don't you worry. It'll come off. Is he out yet, for sure? I mean, do you know that he is?"

"Scruton?" Yes—since you press it—has wrote to tell me that he was coming out even sooner than he expected."

"Then he can stop out for me," said Hilton Toye. "I guess I'm not running for that reward!"

CHAPTER IV.

Down the River. At Waterloo the two men parted, with a fair exchange of friendly speeches, none of which rang really false. And yet Cazlet found himself emphatically unable to make any plans at all for the next few days; also, he seemed in two minds now about a journey to the westward, which he had mentioned as his immediate destination; and his step was indubitably lighter as he went off first of all to the looping, to make sure of some train or other, that he might have to take before the day was out.

In the event he did not take that train, or any other, for the new smell of the new traffic, the new newer joys of the newest of new tactics, all worked together, and so swiftly upon Cazlet's organism that he had a little colloquy with his smart young driver instead of paying him in Jermy Street. He nearly did pay him off, and with something more than his usual impetuosity, as either a liar or a fool with no sense of time or space.

"But that's as quick as the train, my good fellow!" blurted Cazlet.

"Quicker," said the smart young fellow without dipping his cigarette, "if you were going by the old Southwest."

The very man, and especially the manners that made or marred him, was entirely new to Cazlet, as was a product of the old country. But he had come from the bush, and he felt as though he might have been back there but for the smell of petrol and the cry of the motor-horn from end to end.

INCOME OF A STREET BEGGAR

Curious Resident on Opposite Side of Thoroughfare Places Contributions at $1,000 Yearly.

There was a certain Bartimeus who was wont to take his seat at the side of a crowded city street, with a well fed dog at his side sitting on a mat provided by his master, to protect his hinder-quarters from the cold stone. The dog held a tin money box attached to his collar. The man had a few lead

Amazing Masses of Stars.

By studying the distribution of stars in the globular masses, E. Pickering has deduced, from observation, the apparent density, i. e., the number of stars per unit of surface at different distances from the center of the mass; he concludes that the distribution is the same for bright stars as for feeble ones, and also the law of distribution is the same from one mass to another.

H. von Zeipel has endeavored to deduce, from the apparent density on

end of those teeming gullies of bricks and mortar.

He had accompanied his baggage just as far as the bureau of the Jermy Street hotel. Any room they liked, and he would be back some time before midnight; that was his card, they could enter his name for themselves. He departed, pipe in mouth, open knife in one hand, plug tobacco in the other; and remarks were passed in Jermy Street as the taxi bounced out west in ballast.

But indeed it was too fine a morning to waste another minute indoors, even to change one's clothes, if Cazlet had possessed any better than the ones he wore and did not rather glory in his rule attire. He was simply and comfortably drunk with the delight of being back. He had never dreamed of his getting into his head like this, the time did not realize that it had. That was the beauty of his bout. He knew well enough what he was doing and seeing, but inwardly he was literally blind. Yesterday was left behind and forgotten like the Albert Memorial, and to-morrow was still as distant as the sea, if there were such things as to-morrow and the sea.

Mentally what vivid scenes of dazzling life, how cool in the shadows, how warm in the sun; what a sparkling old river it was, to be sure; and yet, if those weren't the first of the autumn tints on the trees in Castleman.

There went a funeral, on its way to Mortlake. The taxi overhauled it at a gallop. Cazlet just had time to look off his great soft hat. It was actually the first funeral he had seen since his own father's, no wonder his radiance suffered a brief eclipse. But in another moment he was out on Barnes Common.

It had been the bicycle age when he went away, now it was the motor age, and the novelty and contrast were endless to a simple mind under the influence of forgotten yet increasingly familiar scenes. But nothing was lost on Cazlet that great morning; even a milk-ford entranced him, itself enchanted, with its tail can turned to gold and silver in the sun. But now he was on all but holy ground. It was not so holy with those infernal electric trams; still he knew every inch of it; and now, thank goodness, he was off the lines at last.

"Slower!" he shouted to his smart young man. He could not say that notice was taken of the command. But a covered way leading up to the house, was past and gone in a veritable twinkling.

Five or six minutes later the smart young man was driving really slowly along a narrow road between patent wealth and blatant semi-gentility; on the left good grounds, shaded by cedar and chestnut, and on the right a row of hideous little houses, as pretentious as any that ever let for waterloo within forty minutes of Waterloo.

"This can't be it!" shouted Cazlet. "It can't be here—stop! Stop! I tell you!"

A young woman had appeared in one of the overpowered wooden porticoes, two or three swinging stately, and she was waving her hand. But out both came as if they were children still, and children who had been just long enough apart to start with a good honest mutual stare.

"You aren't a bit altered," declared the man of thirty-two, with a note not entirely tactful in his admiring voice. But his old chum only laughed.

pencils which he pretended were for sale.

The man simply sat, and the money rolled in. A curious resident on the opposite side of the street took lengthy observations, and then drew up a calculation based on the assumption that one cent was given every time a contribution was made, though frequently seen to make a quarter was taken into consideration the average number of absences in a given time due to inclement weather, the probability the celestial sphere, the true density in space, with partially satisfactory results. The distribution of stars near the center was represented in a satisfactory manner, but the density at the boundaries is less than that required by the theory.

In a new memoir he arrives at a novel conclusion. Each of these masses is a gigantic system containing about a million stars; the number of stars visible on a plate is not the hundredth part of the total number.

An apple eaten before breakfast serves as a natural stimulant for the digestive organs.

"Fiddle!" she cried. "But you're not altered enough. Sweep, I'm disappointed in you. Where's your beard?"

"I had it off the other day. I always meant to," he explained, "before the end of the voyage. I wasn't going to hand like a wild man of the woods, you know."

"Where's your beard?" he cried, daunted that she should "They're awful old days, I know, but you would think them a wonder if you saw where they came from."

"I'm sorry to interrupt," said Blanche, laughing, "but there's your taxi ticking up twopenny every quarter of an hour, and I can't let it go without warning you. Where have you come from?"

He told her with a grin, was roundly reprimanded for his extravagance, but brushed it off by giving the smart young man a sovereign before her eyes. After that, she said he had better come in before the neighbors came out and mobbed him for a millionaire. And he followed her indoors and upstairs, into a little new den crowded with some of the big old things he could remember in a very different setting. But the room was small it had a balcony that was hardly any smaller, on top of that unduly imposing porch; and out there, overlooking the fine grounds opposite, were basins, chairs and a table, hot with the Indian summer sun.

"I hope you are not shocked at my abode," said Blanche. "I'm afraid I can't help it if you are. It's just big enough for Martha and me; you remember old Martha don't you? You'll have to come and see her, but she'll be horribly disappointed about your abode."

Cooling through the room, stopping to greet a picture and a bookcase (filling a wall each) as old friends, Cazlet had described a photograph of himself with that appendage. He had threatened to take the beastly thing away, and Blanche had told him he had better not. But it did not occur to Cazlet that it was the photograph to which Hilton Toye had referred, or that Toye must have been in this very room to see it. In these few hours he had forgotten the man's existence, at least in so far as it associated itself with Blanche Macanin.

"The others all wanted me to live near them," she continued, "but as two of them are in the same county it would have meant a caravan. Besides, I wasn't going to be transplanted at my age. Here one has everybody one ever knew, except those who escape by emigrating, simply at one's own choice. There's more golf and tennis than I can find time to play; and I still keep the old boat in the old boat-house at Littleford, because it hasn't let or sold yet, I'm sorry to say."

"So I saw as I passed," said Cazlet. "That hit me hard!"

"The place being empty hits me harder," cried the last of the Macanins. "It's going down in value every day like all the other property about here, except this sort. Mind where you throw that match, Sweep! I don't want you to set fire to my pampas-grass; it's the old tree I've got!"

Cazlet laughed, she was making him laugh quite often. But the pampas-grass was the rest of the ridiculous little garden in front, and he secured it not overbathing by the balcony on which they sat. And the subject seemed one to change.

"It was simply glorious coming down," he said. "I wouldn't swap that quarter of an hour for a bale of wool. You can't think how every morning on the way appeared to me. The old blot was a funeral at Barnes! It seemed such a sin to be buried on a day like this, and a fellow like me coming home to enjoy himself!"

He had turned grave, but not graver than at the actual moment coming down. Indeed, he was simply coming down, for her benefit and his own, without an ulterior motive still. Blanche took him up with a long face of her own.

"We've had a funeral here. I suppose you know?"

"Yes, I know."

Her chair creaked as she leaned forward with an enthusiastic solemnity that would have made her shiver if she had seen herself; but it had no such effect on Cazlet.

Equally Useless. Faith without works is about as useless as a watch without wheels.

HOW COAST GUNNERS ARE TRAINED

It is upon the seaboard guns that the security of the nation will depend should an enemy succeed in crippling our far-flung line, the navy, and drive our dreadnaughts to the cover of the harbors and the protection of the heavy rifles and mortars of the army.

The question is, can these seaboard batteries hold a foe at bay? On our continental shores we have a total of 28 coast defense commands, and 21 of these are located upon the Atlantic littoral. But even though there are fewer stations on the Pacific coast, still these are very formidable. Without considering weapons of eight-inch caliber and under, we already have mounted a total upon our two shores of 372 12-inch mortars, 105 12-inch rifles, and 132 10-inch heavy guns. The strength of the personnel of the coast artillery, according to the latest figures, is 758 officers and 17,931 enlisted men. This is a shortage of soldiers of 1,420 agreeably to the force authorized by law, and this is an intimation of the extreme heavy work that the men would have to face in case of hostilities, because we are minus a vitally necessary reserve.

The average layman has but the slightest knowledge of the extremely technical character of the Coast Artillery corps, and to be proficient in these soldiers receive a many-sided education. Theirs is the task of getting the advantage of the enemy before he can locate the position of our guns and mortars, and the whole system of defense is the exact opposite of the way in which a hostile squadron would approach its aggressive task.

From the very beginning of the planning of our existing seaboard batteries the idea of concealment was the first concern. The mortars were designed to be hidden away in pits—each of them holding four of these stations were in the ground, and the whole system of defense is the exact opposite of the way in which a hostile squadron would approach its aggressive task.

Many have seen from afar at our coast defense stations what seemed to be big bird boxes mounted upon towering tubular supports or web-work of steel. There are always two of them, and officially they are known as the primary and secondary range stations. In each of them, in time of service, there are at least two men. One is the observer, and the other is the plotting room. The observer is a man with a powerful telescope from right to left, and his function is to keep the moving target continually at the point of intersection of two cross hairs in the field of his instrument. His companion reads off at prescribed intervals the angle made by the telescope with the permanent base and the faraway foe.

In the same thing is being done at the other range station at the opposite end of the base. A time bell rings at each of these stations every 20 seconds, and at the third stroke the man reading the angular scale telephones that measurement to the plotting room located where the enemy cannot see it and itself in telephonic communication with each gun or mortar division.

In the plotting room a group of men make use of the information coming to them intermittently from the range-finding towers and by a graphic process determine with great nicety the distance off of the steaming foe. The plotting table or board where the information from the observers is applied is a big semicircular affair—the curved edge being graduated to fractions of a degree, while the straight edge or diameter represents on a definite scale the length of the base line of this base line is a pivoted ruler. At each end of the primary and the other the secondary—corresponding to the range-finding station with which its operator is in touch by telephone. Here is what follows:

The soldiers at the primary and secondary pivoted rulers or arms bring the free ends toward one another in accordance with the separate angles telephoned to them. A third man operates another ruler called the gun arm, which measures the distance or range of the axis of this triangle. At the word of command from the range officer the observers at the two telescopes bring these powerful instruments to bear in unison upon a chosen part of the remote ship. At the order "Take it" the scale readers telephone the figures to the operators at the plotting board. In a few seconds the man in charge there has placed on a large sheet of paper a dot at the point where the two straight edges meet and has marked this point with No. 1.

Again, 20 seconds later, another dot is made where the shifting straight edges meet, and this is numbered 2. Similarly the positions are thus recorded for No. 3 and No. 4, and if the distance between these dots is uniform the plotters know that the target is moving at a steady speed and the path dots gives a visible trace of the direction.

Significant Food Statistics.

A statement recently issued by the Provincial Horticulturist of British Columbia gives some significant statistics concerning the production and importation of food products in that province. The figures show that in 1914 there were produced in the province food supplies to the value of $20,000,000, while during the same period imports consisting of produce which might have been raised in the province were valued at $25,000,000. Twenty millions were imported from other parts of the dominion. The live stock importations for 1914 totaled $5,800,000, and dairy produce $4,500,000. Of these 40 per cent came from outside of Canada and 60 per cent from other provinces. The bulk came mostly from eastern Canada, Alberta, and New Zealand.

TRAIN ROBBERS ON RAMPAGE IN STATE

CREW IS HELD UP AT PORTAGE, ARMS AND MONEY TAKEN AWAY FROM THEM.

ONE OF GANG IS CAPTURED

Desperadoes Figuring in Bold Dash Across State May Be Those Who Held Up Cloverland Limited—One Is Wounded.

Portage.—Two bandits, thought by the police to be the men who held up the Milwaukee road's coast train at Glenbrook, Minn., ran amuck half way across the state of Wisconsin during which they figured in robbery and armed fighting in at least three places. The men first held up the caboose of a Milwaukee freight train at New Lisbon, Conductor Michael Kelly and brakemen Joseph J. Murphy and Oscar Saxon were robbed of their money, watches and street clothing. The robbers then leaped upon a passenger train and disappeared.

They were stopped in the Portage yards by Chief of Police Curry of this city and his assistants. The officers were greeted with a fusillade of shots, and with their hands in the air, they were robbed of their revolvers and money.

The robbers were most interested at Watertown Junction, fifty miles east, where three officers attacked the two fugitives when the leader of the front end of a passenger engine. In the exchange of shots one of the robbers was wounded. He was afterwards captured at Johnson's Creek, near Watertown. The other escaped.

STATE NURSES ELECT HEAD

Madison.—Mary E. Good of Wauwatosa was elected president of the Wisconsin Association of Graduate Nurses at the sixth annual convention which was held here. The other officers are: Vice-president, Myra Kimball, Green Bay; and Miss Kate Kohlenstein, Milwaukee; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Pukshuhn, Milwaukee; and secretary, Bertha Schulz, Milwaukee.

The association voted to affiliate with the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs, to become a corporate member of the National Association of Public Health Nursing, named a committee to organize a state public health association, elected Miss Regina White, Milwaukee, delegate to the annual convention of the American Nursing association to be held next year at New Orleans and delegate to the meeting of the National Red Cross association at Washington this winter. It is planned to hold next year's convention in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association.

KURRYER CASE NOT DECIDED

Supreme Court Merely Orders Briefs on Motion to Dismiss Company's Appeal.

Madison.—The suit of the Kuryer-Polski company against Archbishop Mooney and the other bishops of the Milwaukee province, came up in the supreme court, a motion by the defendants to dismiss the pleading, company's appeal from Circuit Judge Halsey's order limiting the right to examine the archbishop under the discovery statute. This motion was made on the ground that the order was not an appealable order. It was understood that the supreme court had decided against the defendants, but it declined to make an immediate ruling, and ordered that the matter be briefed when it would be taken up and decided with other questions in the case.

Students From Farms Increase.

Madison.—This year's enrollment in the College of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin would seem to indicate that more men from the country and fewer from the city are training themselves for agricultural positions. Of the young men who entered the College of Agriculture this year a much larger percentage in farm reared, the increase over the 1912 enrollment being 17 per cent. The percentage of city bred students, on the other hand, has fallen from 22 per cent in 1914 to 16 per cent in 1915.

Author of The Amateur Cracksmen, Raffles, Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

Cazale, on the steamer Kalbar Fritz, homeward bound from Australia, called out in his sleep that Henry Cavendish, who ten years before had ruined his father and himself, in dead and faint that Hilton Toye, who shares the stateroom with him, knows Cavendish, and also knows Macnair, a former neighbor and playmate. When the train leaves, Cazale, about at Southampton Toye reads that Cavendish has been hanged, and that Cazale's dream is a premonition. He thinks of doing a little amateur detective work on the case himself. In the train he meets a man who tells him that Cavendish was killed by a man named Macnair, and that Cavendish had been a friend of his father's. Cazale's dream is a premonition.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

Toye looked discontented and distressed, but at the same time frankly puzzled. He apologized none the less, with almost ingenuous courtesy and fullness, but he ended by explaining himself in a single sentence, and that told more than the rest of his straightforward eloquence put together.

"If a man had done you down like that, wouldn't you want to kill him the very moment you came out, Cazale?" The creature of impulse was off at a tangent. "I'd forgive him, but I'd kill him," he exclaimed. "I'd make heaven and earth to save him, guilty or not guilty. Wouldn't you in my place?"

"I don't know," said Hilton Toye. "It depends on the place you're in, I guess." And the keen dark eyes came drilling into Cazale's skull like augers.

"I thought I told you," he explained impatiently. "We were in the office together; he was good to me, winked at the business hours I was inclined to keep, let me down lighter in every way than I deserved. You may say it was part of his name. But I take people as I find them. And then, as I told you, Scritton was ten thousand times more stoned against than slandering."

"Are you sure? If you knew it at the time?"

"I didn't. I told you so the last night."

"Well, I mustn't ask questions," said Hilton Toye, and began telling up his newspaper with even more than his usual deliberation.

"Oh, I'll tell you," cried Cazale ungraciously. "It's my own fault for telling you so much. It was in a letter from Scritton himself that I heard the whole thing. I'd written to him—toward the end—suggesting things. He managed to get an answer from me, and that would never have passed the prison authorities. And—and that's why I came home just when I did," concluded Cazale; "that's why I didn't wait till after shearing. It's been through about enough, and I've had my luck. But I mustn't tell you to take him back with me to keep the books on our station, if you want to know!" The brisk voice trembled.

Toye let his newspaper slide to the floor. "But that was fine!" he exclaimed simply. "That's as fine an action as I've heard of in a long time."

"If it comes off," said Cazale in a gloomy voice.

"Don't you worry. I'll come off. I'm out yet, for sure? I mean, do you know that he is?"

"Scritton? Yes—since you press it—no wrote to tell me that he was coming out even sooner than he expected."

"Then he can stop out for me," said Hilton Toye. "I guess I'm not running for that reward!"

CHAPTER IV.

Down the River.

At Waterloo the two men parted. With a fair exchange of fitting speeches, none of which rang really false. And yet Cazale found himself emphatically unable to make any plans at all for the next few days; also, he seemed in two minds now about a Jernyn Street hotel previously mentioned as his immediate destination; and his step was indubitably lighter as he went off first of all to the loop-line, to make sure of some train or other that he might have to take before the day was out.

In the event he did not take that train or any other; for the new miracle of the new traffic, the new smell of the horseless streets, and the newer joys of the newest of new taxicabs, all worked together and so swiftly upon Cazale's organism that he had a little colic with his small young driver instead of paying him in Jernyn Street. He nearly did pay him off, and with something more than his usual impetuosity, as either a liar or a fool with no sense of time or space.

"But that's as quick as the train, my good fellow," blurted Cazale.

"Quicker," said the young fellow without dipping his chin, "if you were going by the old Southwest-ern!"

The very man, and especially the manners that made or marred him, was entirely new to Cazale as he had come from the bush, and he felt as though he might have been there but for the smell of petrol and the cry of the motor-horn from end to end of those teeming gullies of bricks and mortar.

He had accompanied his baggage just as far as the bureau of the Jernyn Street hotel. Any room they liked, and he would be back some time before midnight; that was his card, they could enter his name for themselves. He departed, pipe in mouth, open knife in one hand, plug tobacco in the other; and remarks were passed in Jernyn Street as the taxi hurried out west in haste.

But indeed it was too fine a morning to waste another minute indoors, even to change one's clothes, if Cazale had possessed any better than the ones he wore and did not rather glory in his rude attire. He was simply and comfortably drunk with the delight of being back. He had never dreamed of his setting into his head like this, at the time he did not realize that it had.

That was the beauty of his bout. He knew well enough what he was doing and seeing, but inwardly he was literally blind. Yesterday was left behind and forgotten like the Albert Memorial, and to-morrow was still as distant as the sea, if there were such things as to-morrow and the sea.

Meanwhile, what a subtle autumn dazzle of life, what a subtle autumn flavor in the air; how cool in the shadows, how warm in the sun; what a sparkling old river it was, to be sure; and yet, if those weren't the first of the autumn tints on the trees in Castle-

"Tiddle!" she cried. "But you're not altered enough. Sweep, I'm disappointed in you. Where's your beard?"

"I had it off the other day. I always meant to," he explained, "before the end of the voyage. I wasn't going to land like a wild man of the woods, you know?"

" weren't you? I call it mean." Her scrutiny became severe, but softened again at the sight of his clubbed wide-awake and curiously characteristic, shapeless suit.

"You may well look!" he cried, delighted that she should. "They're awful old duds. I know, but you would think them a wonder if you saw where they came from—"

He told her with a grin, was roundly reprimanded for his extravagance, but brazened it out by giving the smart young man a sovereign before her eyes. After that, she said he had better come in before the neighbors came out and mobbed him for a millionaire. And he followed her indoors and upstairs, into a little new room crowded with some of the big old things he could remember in a very different setting. But if the room was small it had a balcony that was hardly any smaller, on top of that oddly imposing porch; and out there, overlooking the fine grounds opposite, was the old house and a table, hot with the Indian summer sun.

There's more golf and tennis than I can find time to play; and I still keep the old boat house at Littleport. I'm sorry to say."

"So I saw as I passed," said Cazale. "That hit me hard!"

"The place being empty hits me harder," rejoined the last of the Macnairs. "It's going down the value of the place like all the other property about here, except this sort. Mind where you throw that match, Sweep! I don't want you to set fire to my pampas-grass; it's the only tree I've got."

Two bandits, concealed by the police to the north, who held up the Milwaukee road, passed that at Glenwood, Minn., and about half way across the state of Wisconsin during which they figured in robbery and armed holding in at least three places. The men first held up the passenger train at a Milwaukee branch train at New Lisbon. Conductor Michael Kelly and brakemen Joseph J. They were stopped in the narrow yard by Chief of Police John J. O'Brien and his men. The officers were armed with a number of shots, and with their hands in the air, they were robbed of their revolvers and money.

The robbers were next intercepted at Watrous Junction, Minn., where, when three officers attacked the two bandits, when the bandits fled from the front end of a passenger train in the exchange of shots one of the robbers was wounded. He was afterwards captured at Johnsons Creek, near Watrous. The other escaped.

STATE NURSES ELECT HEAD

Mary E. Good, Wauwatosa, Chosen President at Annual Convention at Madison.

Madison. Mary E. Good of Wauwatosa was elected president of the Wisconsin Association of Nurses at the annual convention, which was held here. The other officers are: Vice-president, Mary Randall, Green Bay; and Mrs. Kate Kohnst, Milwaukee; treasurer, Mrs. Mary J. Kohnst, Milwaukee; and secretary, Martha Schulz, Milwaukee.

The association voted to affiliate with the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs, to become a corporate member of the National Association of Public Health Nurses, to recommend to organize a state public health association, elected Mrs. Hattie White, Milwaukee, delegate to the annual convention of the American Nursing association to be held at St. Paul, New Orleans and delegate to the meeting of the National Red Cross association at Washington this winter. It is planned to hold next year's convention in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association.

KURVER CASE NOT DECIDED

Supreme Court Merely Orders Briefs on Motion to Dismiss Company's Appeal.

Madison. The suit of the Kurver-Polek company against Archbishop Messner and the other bishops of the Milwaukee province, came up in the supreme court on a motion by the defendants to dismiss the plaintiff's appeal from Circuit Judge Halsey's order. The court refused to examine the archbishop under the discovery statute. This motion made on the ground that the order was not an appealable order. It was understood that the supreme court had decided against the defendants, but it develops that the statement was inaccurate. The court declined to make an immediate ruling and ordered that the matter be briefed when it would be taken up and decided with other questions in the case.

Students From Farms Increase.

Madison. This year's enrollment in the College of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin would seem to indicate that more men from the country and fewer from the city are training themselves for agricultural positions. Of the young men who entered the College of Agriculture this year a much larger percentage is from rural areas than in 1914. The enrollment in 1914 was 1,042, and in 1915 it was 1,100. The percentage of city-bred students, on the other hand, has fallen from 22 per cent in 1914 to 16 per cent in 1915.

Oshkosh Gets New Concerns.

Oshkosh. The Oshkosh Storage Company has been organized and will locate in a three-story structure formerly used for hospital purposes. The Mollie Typewriter company has agreed to come here.

Goos to W. C. T. U. Convention.

Stevens Point. Mrs. Ella Sanford, president of the local Women's Christian Temperance union, has gone to Seattle, where she is a state delegate to the national convention.

Burns His Mother's Barn.

Green Bay. Fred Olson, captured by Sheriff Vandenberg in the woods near Gilmore, after a fight's search following a fire which destroyed Olson's mother's barn, confessed to firing the building for revenge, according to the sheriff.

Mushroom Weighs Ten Pounds.

Oconomowoc. An odd mushroom, found by O. R. Eddy, measures four feet in circumference and weighs nearly ten pounds.

Nevada Ready Dec. 1.

Manitowish. Plans are being made here for putting the new Goodrich line steamer Nevada into the service by Dec. 1. Captain Elmer Redner, one of the oldest skippers in the service of the line has been made commander of the new vessel of the fleet.

Janeville Resident Dies.

Janeville. Mrs. Adeline J. Sowa, 96 years old, died here. She was a resident of this city for seventy-three years.

INCOME OF A STREET BEGGAR

Curious Resident on Opposite Side of Thoroughfare Places Contributions at $1,000 Yearly.

There was a certain Bartimeus who was wont to take his seat at the side of a crowded city street, with a well fed dog at his side sitting at the feet provided by his master, to protect his hinder-quarters from the cold stone. The dog held a tin money box attached to his collar. The man had a few lead pencils which he pretended were for sale.

The man simply sat, and the money rolled in. A curious resident on the opposite side of the street took lengthy observations, and then drew up a calculation based on the assumption that one cent was given every time a contribution was made, though frequently silver coins and bills of a quarter or less were tossed into the tin, and taking into consideration the average number of alms in a given time due to inclement weather, the probable income amounted to about $1,000 a year.

The estimate may not be very exact, but it is nearer the truth than the ordinary passerby thinks, and the stream of coin would not be so copious. As he is no longer at the receipt of custom, the inference is that he has retired to live in the country on the proceeds.

Equally Useless.

Faith without works is about as useless as a watch without wheels.

AFTER 60 YEARS' HOLIDAY

J. C. Chase, Eighty-Five, Goes Back to Scenes of Early Success in the Gold Fields.

The spectacle of an old man, eighty-five years of age, fitting himself out as a prospector and taking his blankets into a total elapsed time of less than one minute, and these were concentrated upon a target four miles away being towed at the rate of something over five miles an hour. All four shots struck the target and actually passed through a rectangle 24 feet high by 33 feet long. At 4,000 yards the same caliber guns at Fortresses Monroe scored six hits out of six shots at a moving target. The total elapsed time of the firing was slightly over two minutes, the batteries scoring 1.4 hits per gun per minute.

The Money Lender.

Sixty years ago a man came to Paris from the Carpathians. Since that time he has sold jewels and lent money to several generations of spendthrifts. He obtained permission to remain in France. He has never been dangerous except to the cash of the fathers of families. More than this, his son has borne himself as a true Frenchman, who has been wounded battling with our enemies. When one asks this father for news of his wounded son, he responds: "My boy, thank you, I getting better. But day before yesterday I learned of the death of the viscount of S. He owed me 12,000 francs. Yesterday I heard of the death of the marquis of Z. He was to have paid me 15,000 francs at the end of the month.

Today little H. has disappeared. He was my debtor for 4,000 francs. I am ruined, ruined, my dear monsieur."

Anxiously the old man each day runs through the journals giving the lists of dead and wounded. He is as sensitive as the little Russian usurer who prayed every day for the soul of

of his early life rang in his ears and he could not resist the temptation to cover the ground where he made his fortune in his younger years.

Chase was not so successful in his first day's panning as he was in the '30s, but was delighted when he found color in his first run. He thought to show some of his old miners a trick in this business yet," said Chase to some of the men who have been mining here with indifferent success for years.

The old man does not look more than sixty and says he can stand camping as well as any man of any age. There are few in this old mining town who really remember the old man as the youngster of twenty-five who made a good "clean-up" and left here in 1855.

Rather Opposed.

"Actors have a queer way of handling the language."

"How's that?"

"When a show comes to a good stand they call it a run."

HER EQUIPMENT.

"That girl is fishing for a husband."

"Then I suppose she uses a baitline in hopes of a good catch."

000,000, while during the same period imports consisting of produce which might have been raised in the province were valued at $25,000,000. Twenty millions were imported from outside of Canada and $5,000,000 worth from other parts of the dominion. The live stock importations for 1914 totaled $5,800,000, and dairy products $4,500,000. Of these 40 per cent came from outside of Canada and 60 per cent from other provinces. The butter came mostly from eastern Canada, Alberta, and New Zealand.

NEWS NOTES FROM NEARBY PLACES

Adams County Press.—While running home from Westfield about 5 o'clock, with an automobile, Herman McLaughlin of Richmond and Miss Belva Roberts of Lincoln met an accident which cost Miss Roberts life,
and McLaughlin was badly bruised,
and he is unable to give any other statements regarding the accident. The accident happened on a stretch of good road, and as Mc-Laughlin is a careful driver, it was permeated that something went wrong
with the car, as one wheel was off,

DEATH OF FORMER RESIDENT

Grandma Sharkey Dies at Merrill at Age of Ninety-One Years.

Merrill Herald.—The county lost another of its pioneer settlers Saturday evening, when Mrs. George Sharkey, 91, passed into the great beyond at 7 o'clock. Grandma Sharkey, as she is familiarly known, would have reached the age of ninety-one years had she lived until February 25, of next year.

Grandma has been ill for about two years, the cause of death being ascribed to old age. She was born in Montreal, Canada, where she grew to young womanhood. At the age of twenty-one she was married to Joseph Sharkey, who passed away about nine years ago. Thirteen children were born to bless this union, eight of whom survive. They are Mrs. John Richard, of Morton, Wash.; Joseph, Jr., of this city; Mrs. Louis Meunier, of Grand Rapids; Henry and Louis, of Cloquet, Minn.; Frank, of this city; Dennis, of Wausau. One sister, Mrs. Selma Jossau, of this city is also left to mourn her sad demise. Besides these relatives, Mrs. Sharkey is survived by fifty-one grandchildren and fifty-nine great grand children, with whom she was a favorite and who will keenly feel her loss.

The deceased, together with her husband and children, moved to this county thirty-four years ago, from Grand Rapids, where they resided twenty-five years.

The remains of the deceased is being viewed by a large number of friends and relatives at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Meunier, on Second Street. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock at the St. Francis Xavier church. Rev. Fr. Owen officiating.

KILLED AT REDGRANITE

Man Called Out of Saloon Saturday Night and Shot.

Redgranite has been the scene of another fatal tragedy. Keith Maki, a quarry boss, aged 38, was shot and killed, Saturday evening, by John Albert Carter, who was shot by Carter. The men had a dispute and litigation over a board bill.

About 9 o'clock Saturday evening Lasko went to Redgranite from his home a few miles distant and inquired for Maki. He finally located the quarry boss in a saloon. Calling Maki outside the two conversed for a time and then Maki re-entered the saloon. He was again called out by Lasko and again returned to the saloon. The third time that Maki was called outside by Lasko others in the saloon heard a shot and on going out of the rear door found Maki dead with a bullet hole thru his skull. Lasko had fled.

This is the second tragedy in which Maki has figured at Redgranite, but in the first one he was the victim. When walking across the land of Albert Carter he was shot by Carter. He was taken to a Fond du Lac hospital and while he was still there Carter committed suicide.

DID YOU SAVE ANYTHING LAST MONTH?

You are not alone if you didn't. Hundreds of others saved nothing last month, nor for many previous months. But the quicker you advance yourself from the Spenders to the Savers, the better it will be for your future.

Systematic Saving is the only kind that counts. Spasmodic resolutions to spend less and save more, followed in a short time by reversing your resolution, are of little value. You must save by system if you expect to get anywhere.

Determine what part of your income you can save each week or each month and bring it to the Savings Department of this Bank. Never skip, never decrease the amount. The rapidity with which your dollars accumulate will astonish you.

DAMAGE TO BADGER TOBACCO IS HEAVY

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS LOSS IS CAUSED BY RAINS AND HAIL.

SHED BURN IS NOW FEARED

Estimated Annual Income of Crop to Wisconsin Farmers of $6,000,000 May Be Reduced to $1,000,000.

Stoughton.—The loss on Wisconsin tobacco this year will amount in the millions, possibly 10 per cent of the entire crop being best quality, though shed burn may cause still further losses. The weather has been too wet for proper curing in the shed. Some farmers are building fires under the sheds to preserve the shed-dried weed.

Following close upon the recent disastrous hailstorm the growing districts of the southern portion of the state were deluged with an eight inch rain which flooded the low lands.

Reports of hail damage in sections between Madison and McFarland, about Sun Prairie and in Vernon county bring further discouraging news.

Possibly 10 to 25 per cent of the crop had been harvested before these disasters appeared and a large portion of that has been rendered almost worthless.

The income from tobacco in Wisconsin has been estimated at $6,000,000 a year. It may reach $1,000,000 this year.

CANDY IS POISONED

TWO HELD ON A CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Pair Breaks Down and Will Be Sentenced in Circuit Court—Strychnine Is Used.

Merrill.—Mrs. Elwyn Webb and Fred Deisinger are being held here awaiting sentence on a charge of attempted murder, having confessed they tried to kill Mrs. Webb's husband with candy poisoned with strychnine. After the preliminary examination here they expressed a desire to plead guilty to the charge as soon as they could be taken before Circuit Judge Reid of Wausau.

According to the confession obtained by the police from both Mrs. Webb and Deisinger, two attempts to put the husband out of the way were made.

The first stick of candy proved nearly fatal to Webb, but despite his suspicions he ate of another stick. The second time he also came near death. "Eat this candy before you go to bed and your troubles with your wife will have disappeared by morning," was the wording of a note which the police saw was sent to Webb with the candy. The package was mailed at New Lisbon, where they formerly lived and where Mrs. Webb was staying.

After the first dose failed the woman came to Merrill, and while here wrote a letter asking Deisinger to get more strychnine, as the first attempt had been unsuccessful, the testimony showed.

STATE HAS LARGE POTATO OUTPUT

NEARLY 25,000,000 BUSHELS ARE ANNUALLY MARKETED IN WISCONSIN.

FARMERS STORE AT HOME

Warehouses in State Accommodate Only One-third of Yearly Crop—Machinery Is Gradually Being Installed.

Madison.—That Wisconsin is annually marketing in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 bushels of potatoes, or 20 per cent of the entire output entering interstate trade, is the information given out in a bulletin issued by the university college of agriculture. While this output is sent to nearly every state in the union, the majority part of it is consumed in the middle west and Mississippi valley.

Another point brought out by the bulletin is that the warehouses in the state have capacity to accommodate but one third of the yearly crops. Most of the storing is done by farmers themselves, it being more economical for the farmers to store at home and haul to the shipping point at their convenience.

Chicago is the greatest potato market, according to the bulletins, and insists upon the potatoes being shipped in bulk so that they can be graded there before reaching the city trade. Machinery is gradually being introduced for the grading and handling of potatoes which greatly aids in the work of taking care of the crop.

ESCAPES DEATH IN THRILLING MANNER

Girl Has Crushed Shoe as Means of Exhibition of Presence of Mind.

Chicago.—Miss Edith Simmons has a little shoe, crushed into a shapeless mass of leather, that she can, if asked, exhibit as a memento of her narrow escape from death and her greatest exhibition of presence of mind. She intends to keep the shoe all of her life, and it ever she is in danger of losing courage she will think of the shoe and be certain she will get out of any tight place all right.

The shoe met the fate that would have been Miss Simmons' had it not been for her quick thinking. It was crushed by a flying passenger train near Waukegan.

Miss Simmons, who is only sixteen years old, told at her home of how

STATE HAS LOW DEATH RATE

Wisconsin Death Rate Is But 7.3 Per 1,000 of Population, According to Health Board Report.

Madison.—"here were 1,752 deaths, exclusive of still births, in the state in September, according to the Wisconsin state board of health report. "This," the board said, "represents an annual death rate of 7.3 per 1,000 estimated population. The rate is exceedingly low."

"The northern counties reported 202 deaths with a death rate of 6.7 per 1,000, the central counties reported 571 deaths with a rate of 9.2 per 1,000, and the southern counties 859 with a rate of 9.8 per 1,000."

"More deaths were reported from cancer than any other disease. The deaths from violence show that eight resulted from automobile accidents, four from gun shot wounds, seven from railroad accidents, thirty-six from suicides, thirty-three from accidental drowning, eight from horse vehicles and horses and six from accidental burns and scalds. One death was reported from infantile paralysis, one from smallpox and one from pellagra."

JUDGE MAY BRING SUIT

Supreme Court Grants Fond du Lac Man Right to Proceed Against Being Ousted.

Madison.—The supreme court granted leave to County Judge Richter, Fond du Lac, to sue, in the name of the state, to determine the right of P. W. Chabourne to fill the office of superior judge, created by Fond du Lac county by the last legislature.

This marks the beginning of a fight by Judge Richter to prevent his being ousted as county judge.

Acting upon complaint of certain members of the bar of Fond du Lac county, the legislature abolished Judge Richter's office by creating a superior court, and granting it the powers possessed by the county court. Then Gov. Philip appointed Mr. Chabourne to the superior judgeship. Judge Richter now plans to challenge Judge Chabourne's right to sit, in an action of quo warrant.

HEMP PROVES ITS WORTH

Experiments Tend to Show Growers Can Realize $40 to $75 Per Acre Net Profit.

Madison.—That hemp can be grown in Wisconsin as a cash crop, paying the farmer from $40 to $75 per acre net profit, has been demonstrated by Prof. C. P. Norford, state commissioner of agriculture, who has just concluded the sale of $12,000 worth of hemp. The sale was made for the Wisconsin Hemp Growers' association, of which C. C. Greenfield of Waupun is secretary.

In 1909 the agronomy department of the University of Wisconsin, with which Prof. Norford was connected, conceived the notion that hemp growing in Wisconsin might be made profitable and Prof. R. A. Moore assigned Prof. Norford to the investigation.

The Hemp Growers' association was formed in the region around Waupun, Brandon and Beaver Dam, and another in the vicinity of Burlington and Union Grove. At these centers successful crops have been grown ever since.

Prof. Norford last year sold the 1913 crop for $10,000. The present $12,000 sale is of the crop of 1914. Mr. Norford said that the crop of 1915, now being harvested, is a record breaker, and the sale of the last year's crop has demonstrated the value of the product.

Hemp, as it is produced in Wisconsin, is used for the manufacture of cordage, sails, wrapping, twine, carpets and coarse threads for certain purposes. The area devoted to hemp this year is about 400 acres.

PHILIPP TURNS DOWN U. PLEA

Tells State Board of Education He Will Approve No More Expenditures Unless Urgent.

Madison.—Gov. Philipp served notice on the state board of education, which met here to transact business relating to the state university and state normal schools, that he would not approve any expenditures of state money under the so-called emergency appropriation law for the state normal schools except to meet real emergencies.

The statement was made by the governor during a discussion of the advisability of paying a deficit of $122,000 in the operation expenses of the university. The governor said he believed this deficit should be paid by transferring money from the income fund of the institution, which contained $206,000. The matter will be considered further at a meeting of the board, to be held on Oct. 11.

The board approved the appointment of an additional science teacher at the normal school at Stevens Point and an additional kindergarten teacher at the normal school at Whitewater.

In May, 1914, the average time behind schedule for trains was 2.1 minutes while this year averaged 1.6 minutes. "Grieved," she moaned, as the tears coursed down her cheeks. "He did it. He burned them. I tried to save them, but as you see they are cremated."

"He?" was her husband, Samuel Heap. She was Mrs. Heap of 450 North Carpenter street. The odor of burnt leather reached the judge's nose. Two pairs of charred shoes lay on his bench.

"They were the first shoes he bought me in three years," wept Mrs. Heap. "and then he came home in a surly mood and threw them in the stove."

"He told me to jump in the lake would you do it?" asked the court.

"Not for her, I wouldn't. I'm through with her forever and ever. I'm going to get a divorce."

"But first of all you are going to the bride well to work out a fine of $25 and costs," said Judge La Buy.

"Thank you," replied Heap as if he meant it.

DAMAGE TO BADGER TOBACCO IS HEAVY

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS LOSS IS CAUSED BY RAINS
AND HAIL.

SHED BURN IS NOW FEARED

Estimated Annual Income of Crop to Wisconsin Farmers of $6,000,000
May Be Reduced to $1,000,000.00.

Stoughton.—The loss on Wisconsin tobacco this year will amount into the millions, possibly 10 per cent of the entire crop being best quality, though shed burn may cause still further losses. "The weather has been too wet for proper curing in the shed.
Some farmers are building fires
under the tiers to preserve the sheddled weed."

Following close upon the recent disastrous hailstorm the growing districts of the southern portion of the state were deluged with an eight inch rain which flooded the low lands.

Reports of hail damage in sections
between Madison and McFarland, about Sun Prairie and in Vernon county bring further discouraging
news.

Probably 10 to 25 per cent of the crop had been harvested before these disasters appeared and a large portion of that has been rendered almost worthless.

The income from tobacco in Wisconsin has been estimated at $6,000,- 000 a year. It may reach $1,000,000 this year.

STATE HAS LOW DEATH RATE

Wisconsin Death Rate Is but 7.3 Per 1,000 of Population, According to Health Board Report.

Madison.—There were 7,322 deaths,
exclusive of still births, in the state
in September, according to the Wisconsin state board of health report.
"This," the board said, "represents an annual death rate of 7.2 per 1,000 estimated population. The rate is exceedingly low."

"The northern counties reported 202 deaths with a death rate of 6.7
per 1,000, the central counties reported 571 deaths with a rate of 9.2
per 1,000, and the southern counties 859 with a rate of 8.8 per 1,000.

"More deaths were reported from cancer than any other disease, exclusive of still births, in the state.
Deaths from violence show that eight resulted from automobile accidents,
four from gun shot wounds, seventeen from railroad accidents, thirty-six from suicides, thirty-three from accidental drowning, eight from horse accidents and horses and six
from accidental burns and scalds.
One death was reported from infantile paralysis, one from smallpox and one from pellagra."

PHILIPP TURNS DOWN U. PLEA

Tells State Board of Education He Will Approve No More Expenditure Unless Urged.

Madison.—Gov. Philipp served notice on the state board of education, which met here to transact business relating to the tobacco university and state normal schools, that he would not approve any expenditures of state money under the so-called emergency appropriation law for the state normal schools except to meet real emergencies.

The statement was made by the governor during a discussion of the advisability of paying a deficit of $12,000 in the operation expenses of the university. The governor said he believed this deficit should be paid by transferring money from the income fund of the institution, which contained $206,000. The matter will be considered further at a meeting of the board, to be held on Oct. 11.

The board also considered the appointment of an additional science teacher at the normal school at Stevens Point and an additional kindergarten teacher at the normal school at Whitewater.

Join in Rate Complaint.

Stevens Point.—Seven cities in the Wisconsin river valley are organizing to help cities in the southern part of the state and in the Chippewa and Fox river valleys prepare a complaint to the railroad commission and the interstate commerce commission whereby they might secure better freight rates.

Four Million Dollars in Treasury.
Madison.—State Treasurer Johnson announced that the total amount of money in all funds of the state treasury on Oct. 1 was $4,240,365.65.

School Committee Named.
Florence.—Chairman E. W. Hopkins of the Florence county board has named F. S. Evans of Florence, W. K.
Carter of Commonwealth and John Elmer of Homestead as the committee on common schools.

Crabapple Harvest Over.
Grand Rapids.—The crabapple picking for this season has been about cleared up. The crop has come fully up to expectations and in many cases exceeded early estimates.

Claim Petition Is Short.
Waupaca.—A checking up of signers of the petition to have the county seat
removed from this city to Maunawa shows that instead of the 3,500 signatures necessary to bring the question to vote, there are 1,500 less than that number.

Postoffice Is Advanced.
Pittsville.—The post office at Pitts-ville has been advanced from the fourth class to the third. Miss Baum has been re-appointed postmistress.

Paris Green Causes Death.
Medford.—Mrs. Otto Widner, wife of the manager of the Taylor company farm, becoming dependent took Paris green a short time ago. Pneumonia set in, causing death. She leaves nine children, one a baby of 16 months,
besides her husband.

Old Citizen Dies.

spected citizen of Berlin, died at her

FARMERS STORE AT HOME

Warehouses in State Accommodate
Only One-third of Yearly Crop
—Machinery Is Gradually
Being Installed.

Madison.—That Wisconsin is annually marketing in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 bushels of potatoes, or 20
per cent of the entire output entering
interstate trade, is the information
given out in a bulletin issued by the university college of agriculture. While this output is sent to nearly every
state in the union, the majority part of
it is consumed in the middle west and Mississippi valley.

Another point brought out by the
bulletin is that the warehouses in the state have capacity to accommodate
but one third of the yearly crops.
Most of the storing is done by farmers
themselves, it being more economical
for the farmers to store at home and
haul to the shipping point at their convenience.

Chicago is the greatest potato market, according to the bulletin, and includes upon the potatoes being shipped
in bulk so that they can be graded
there before reaching the city trade.
Machinery is gradually being introduced for the grading and handling
of potatoes which greatly aids in the work of taking care of the crop.

JUDGE MAY BRING SUIT

Supreme Court Grants Fond du Lac Man Right to Proceed Against Being Outsted.

Madison.—The supreme court granted leave to County Judge Richter, Fond du Lac, to sue, in the name of the state, to determine the right of F.
W. Chadbourne to fill the office of superior judge, created for Fond du Lac county by the last legislature.

This marks the beginning of a fight between Judge Richter to prevent his being outsted as county judge.

Acting upon complaint of certain members of the bar of Fond du Lac county, the legislature abolished Judge Richter's office by creating a superior court, and granting it the powers possessed by the county court. Then Gov. Philipp appointed Mr. Chadbourne to the superior judgeship. Judge Richter now plans to challenge Judge Chadbourne's right to sit, in an action of quo warranto.

Train Delay Totals Eighteen Days.

Madison.—The monthly report issued by the state railroad commission for May shows that during this period, of the 16,937 trains run in Wisconsin, 956 were late for a total of 26,732 minutes. In 1914, the average number of trains behind schedule was 9.2 per cent, and for the present year 5.6 per cent. In May, 1914, the average time behind schedule for trains was 2.1 minutes while this year averaged 1.6 minutes. Of the total of 956 trains late, 72 were due to engine trouble, 347 waiting for trains on the same road, 33 through accidents, and 40 from equipment
defects.

Drugged and Robbed of Pension.

and a veteran of the civil war, is in a serious condition after being poisoned and chloroformed by two burglars at his home here. They ransacked the house and secured $90 in pension money. There is no clue to the thieves.

President, Wilbur E. Hurlbut; cashier,
James B. Mulva.

Mail Service Improved.

vice has been inaugurated between Rhinelander and towns along the Watermeet-Monico branch of the Northwestern line.

Use Slingshots in Love Fight.
Racine.—Eight foreigners fought with knives and slingshots over the favor of one girl at a beer garden, and several were injured. The entire gang was rounded up by police and each was fined $5 and costs.

Beloit Greeks Ready.

Chicago to arrange to return to their native country to engage in war. It is said that if a call comes 150 would go from this city.

Green Man Goes to Prison.
Aged Bay.—C. E. Jung, aged 86, insurance agent and hotelkeeper, was for $24 was sentenced by Judge Merritt to three years in state prison. Jung has been an active church worker

here, for years.

Pastor Goes to Nashotah.
Sheboygan.—The Rev. A. P. Curtis preached his farewell sermon to Grace Episcopal parish. He left for his new field of labor at Nashotah.

STATE HAS LARGE POTATO OUTPUT

NEARLY 25,000,000 BUSHELS ARE ANNUALLY MARKETED IN WISCONSIN.

FARMERS STORE AT HOME

Warehouses in State Accommodate
Only One-third of Yearly Crop
—Machinery Is Gradually
Being Installed.

Madison.—That Wisconsin is annually marketing in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 bushels of potatoes, or 20
per cent of the entire output entering
interstate trade, is the information
given out in a bulletin issued by the university college of agriculture. While
this output is sent to nearly every
state in the union, the majority part of
it is consumed in the middle west and
Mississippi valley.

Another point brought out by the
bulletin is that the warehouses in the
state have capacity to accommodate
but one third of the yearly crops.
Most of the storing is done by farmers
themselves, it being more economical
for the farmers to store at home and
haul to the shipping point at their convenience.

Chicago is the greatest potato market, according to the bulletin, and includes upon the potatoes being shipped
in bulk so that they can be graded
there before reaching the city trade.
Machinery is gradually being introduced for the grading and handling
of potatoes which greatly aids in the
work of taking care of the crop.

HEMP PROVES ITS WORTH

Experiments Tend to Show Growers
Can Realize $40 to $75 Per Acre Net Profit.

Madison.—That hemp can be grown in Wisconsin as a cash crop, paying the farmer from $40 to $75 per acre
net profit, has been demonstrated by Prof. C. P. Norrgard, state commissioner of agriculture, who has just concluded the sale of $12,000 worth of fiber. The sale was made for the Wisconsin Hemp Growers' association, of which C. C. Greenfield of Waupun is secretary.

In 1909 the agronomy department of the University of Wisconsin, with which Prof. Norrgard was connected, conceived the notion that hemp growing in Wisconsin might be made profitable and Prof. A. A. Miller assigned Prof. Norrgard to the investigation.
The Hemp Growers' association was formed with one center of experimentation in the region around Waupun, Brandon and Beaver Dam, and another in the vicinity of Burlington and Union Grove. At these centers successful crops have been grown ever since.

Prof. Norrgard last year sold the 1913 crop for $10,000. The present $12,000 sale is of the crop of 1914. Mr. Norrgard says that the crop of 1915, now being harvested, is a record breaker,
and the sale of the last year's crop has demonstrated the value of the product.

Hemp, as it is produced in Wisconsin, is used for the manufacture of cordage, sails, wrapping, twine, carpets and coarse threads for certain purposes. The area devoted to hemp this year is about 400 acres.

CARS IN HEADON COLLISION

Eight Passengers Escape Serious Injuries as Automobiles Crash Together.

Portage.—Eight persons had a miraculous escape from death in a headon automobile collision on the Portage and Baraboo road just outside this city. A touring car was demolished and a smaller car badly wrecked.

Ernest Wendt and Daniel Kelly, two farmhands employed on Walter Harvey's farm in Calumet, were driving to Portage when they met the other machine, driven by Richard Maher of Baraboo. The collision occurred just after crossing a small bridge.

The Baraboo car, with six occupants,
turned completely over in a ditch, pinning down Maher. Hazel Fuller, Esther Fritz and Viola Dunn of Portage, and occupants of the Baraboo car, were bruised, but not seriously hurt.

Ernest Wendt, who was driving a small car, was hurt about the hips and body. Daniel Kelly, riding with Wendt, was thrown through the windshield
and seriously cut about the head.

To Revive Curling.
Waupaca.—It is announced that an organization will be formed here this winter for the revival of the game of curling.

Arrest Accused Forger.
Waupaca.—Authorities here have been informed of the arrest in Omaha
of N. M. Schuster, alias M. Livingston, on a charge of forgery. Among the six warrants outstanding for the man is one in Waupaca.

Leaps Into River and Drowns.
La Crosse.—The second body within a fortnight has been discovered floating in the Mississippi river, following the suicide of an unidentified man who was seen to leap off the wagon bridge.

Examination for Postmaster.
Washington, D. C.—Civil service examinations will be held on Oct. 23 for postmaster at Ionia and Easton. D. C.
McBott, Unity, Wis., has been appointed to a position in the agricultural department.

Harvesting Water Nuts.
Neenah.—The annual harvest of water nuts is being made here by the members of a Chinese colony. Four cents a pound is paid for harvesting
them.

Strange Malady Fatal to Cattle.
Pittsville.—Cattle in this vicinity are suffering from a disease which is baffling the veterinarians. Symptoms include a swelling of the throat and death often results within a few hours.

ESCAPES DEATH IN THRILLING MANNER

Girl Has Crushed Shoe as Memento of Exhibition of Presence of Mind.

Chicago.—Miss Edith Simmons has a little shoe, crushed into a shapeless
mass of leather, that she can, if asked,
exhibit as a memento of her one narrow escape from death and her greatest exhibition of presence of mind. She intends to keep the shoe all of her life, and if ever she is in danger of losing courage she will think of the shoe and is certain she will get out of any tight place all right.

The shoe met the fate that would have been Miss Simmons' had it not been for her quick thinking. It was crushed by a flying passenger train near Waukegan.

Miss Simmons, who is only sixteen years old, told at her home of how

"I Was Frightened to Death."
she escaped the grinding wheels. The shoe was punctuated with shudders of horror.

"I was visiting some friends in Waukegan and we decided to have a picnic in the country," she said. "After the picnic lunch I got lost from the rest of the crowd, and in searching for them tried to cross the railroad tracks."

"In some way my heel caught between the main rail and a guard rail.
I had high shoes on and could not slip my foot out, so I tried for five minutes to work it loose, but I couldn't."

"Then I heard a train whistle. I looked on and only half a mile away
I saw a train rushing toward me. For a second I didn't know what to do. I thought I would surely be killed. Then I forced myself to be calm, and the thought came to me, 'Unless that shoe was quickly as you can.'"

"I was frightened to death that in my haste I would get a knot in the strings, but I didn't. It didn't seem more than five seconds before I had the shoe off and had jumped over one side of the tracks. Then the train rumbled by and made leather muf-fles out of the poor little shoe, just as it would have been of me."

"I bet that engineer never knew how near he came to running me down."

OH, THE CRUEL, CRUEL MAN

Buys Wife First Shoes in Three Years and Then He Burns
Them.

Chicago.—Slowly she approached Judge La Buy's bench and gently she laid them down.

"Crushed," she moaned, as the tears coursed down her cheeks. "He did it. He burned them. I tried to save them, but as you see they are crushed."

"He" was her husband, Samuel Heap. She was Mrs. Heap of 450 North Carpenter street. The odor of burnt leather reached the judge's nose.
Two pairs of charred shoes lay on his bench.

"They were the first shoes he bought me in three years," wept Mrs. Heap.
"I had then been home in a surly mood and threw them in the stove."
"She told me to," interposed Heap.
"If she told you to jump in the lake
would you do it?" asked the court.

"Not for her, I wouldn't. I'm through with her forever and ever.
I'm going to get a divorce."
"First of all, you are going to the bride well to work out a fine of $25
and costs," said Judge La Buy.

"Thank you," replied Heap as if he meant it.

IS SKINNED BY LIGHTNING

Bolt Partially Paralyzes Kansas Man
as It Passes Down His Back.

Scandia, Kan.—Word from Orlando, Fla., tells of the narrow escape from death by lightning of Charles Nystrom, a former Scandia citizen. Striking him on the back between the shoulders, the bolt passed down his back and legs, partially paralyzing him
him from the waist down.

He was literally skinned alive and his outer skin was burned to a crisp.
Mr. Nystrom lived in Scandia for many years, moving to his present home only a few years ago.

At last accounts he was regaining the use of his limbs in spite of his terrible experience, but it is thought cannot recover.

Mother of Five Babies in 18 Months.
Brooklyn.—Mrs. Anna Bellama of Brooklyn has presented her husband with five babies in a year and a half.
Twins, boy and girl, were born 15 months ago, and triplets, two boys and a girl, a few days ago. All are thriving and so is the mother. This is her second essay at twins, a pair having been born eight years ago, making seven children in three births. All are living.

Blacksmith Led a Busy Life.
Lafayette, Ind.—Matthew McNulty, known as the "village blacksmith" of Lafayette, has retired after being in the business for nearly sixty years. He estimates that he shod more than a half million horses and mules in his career. He has accumulated a modest fortune of $40,000 and will retire to his farm.

Men crow when they win a bet, and women cackle when they win a euchre prize—all of which goes to show that men and women resemble poultry.

GETTING THE SAVING HABIT

What Earner of Money Needed Was Simply a Stimulus to Make Economy Attractive.

The following is an account of what competition did toward encouraging a bank account:

"I am on a newspaper. I have always made a salary in excess of simple living requirements, but I was a free spender and did not save."

"A baby came, and I felt an added responsibility. I was afraid—actually frightened for the first time in my life.
Then I gave the matter of saving some thought, but I could not decide upon any course of action."

"At the office one day a business discussion made me see that what I needed in my home was competition.
That night on my arrival home, I said to my wife that I would, beginning the next Saturday, give her half of my salary and I would keep the other half and use each take an equal share of the household expenses."

"At the end of the first month I left my bank book on the library table. I wanted to surprise her. That evening she handed it to me and said she thought I was doing time. Looking at her closely, I saw that she was pleased and surprised. She did not speak, however, of any intention she might have had in mind."

"A month later I found her bank book on the library table. She had been to the bank. She had been to me for her savings showed $10.50
more than my own for the corresponding month, and $15 in excess of my deposits for the first month."

"We are now in a race. We have enough to buy a home if we should join funds."—American Magazine.

SARATOGA

Mr. Nelson, the congenial butcher of Almond, while autoing thru the country stopped at our diggings, scraped acquaintance and remarked his personal acquaintance along the Ten Mile. He had expected to cross the "creek" on the old trail bridge so we think it has been several years since he has passed this way. He could tell us some ancient history on points with which we had been familiar with for ten years.

Leola and Ben and Adolph and Gip and little black Hower all got a great tip that molasses are hushers and holes might close and the hunters are rustlers who took honey toes. From ten in the morning till five in the night, the guns and the dogies of noise make a sight, but the dry grass was scentless, the molasses not bold—this tale is not endless. They got four—all told.

Mrs. C. Deers of Knox, Indiana, arrived Tuesday. She will spend some time visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lee-B. Murgrey. If this isn't the dingiest basket yet, we ever saw anyway. Frost or freeze every month and it's given us one more wallop, a genuine potato freeze arrived last Thursday and put every spud within an inch of the surface into cold storage for fair. We are glad to report that the creek hasn't yet frozen this summer, didn't have to pump water for the stock, as we do in January and February. Say where's that old Japanese curmudgeon that old Japanese curmudgeon who promised you two years ago?

Gov. Philipp has issued a proclamation prescribing new regulations respecting transportation of livestock up to prevent the introduction of the foot and mouth disease into Wisconsin.

Whereas, it has been ascertained that foot and mouth disease again exists, particularly in the state of Illinois, and that there is danger of further infection and spread of the disease from the transportation of livestock and from the use of serums which are manufactured in the state for the prevention of hog cholera;

1. It is hereby ordered that all cattle, sheep or swine shipped into the state of Wisconsin for any other purpose than immediate slaughter from any state or territory shall be considered only in cases that have been disinfected since previously used for the transportation of stock.

2. All horses shipped into the state of Wisconsin shall be loaded only in cars which have been disinfected since last being used for the shipment of livestock.

3. Any cattle, sheep or swine to be transported wholly within the state of Wisconsin for any other purpose than immediate slaughter shall be transported only in cars which have been cleaned and disinfected since previously used for the transportation of stock.

4. Horses from any closed area intended for shipment into the state of Wisconsin must have their feet, tails, manes and their halter, blinkers and other paraphernalia accompanying same disinfected, and this must be pointed to by state or Federal authorities.

5. No cattle, sheep or other ruminants or swine shall be shipped into the state of Wisconsin except from the Federal "free zone" in which stock is consigned to slaughtering plants under Federal supervision and inspection.

6. No hog cholera serum or virus manufactured in the state of Illinois shall be used on any hogs in this state until further orders.

Several counties in northern Illinois are now in quarantine.

SARATOGA

Mr. Nelson, the congenial butcher of Almond, while autolog the country stores in our diggings, secured acquaintance and renewed his personal acquaintance along the "crack" on the old trail bridge so we think it has been several years since he has passed this way. He could tell us some ancient history on points with which we had been familiar with for ten years.

Locate and locate and Adolph and little black boy all got a great tip that molasses are hushers and holes might close and the hunters are rustlers like to see hunny's town. From ten in the morning till five in the night, the guns and the dogies of noise make a sight, but the dry grass was scuttles, the molasses not hold—this talk is all told.

Mrs. C. Beers of Knox, Indiana, arrived Tuesday. She will spend some time visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lewis, Mary, if this isn't the thing best of year we ever saw anyway! Frost or freeze every month and it's given us no more wallop, a genuine potato frozen within an inch of the surface late cold storage for fair. We are glad to report that the creek hasn't yet frozen this summer, didn't have to pump water into the stock, as we do in January and February. Say where's that old Japanese current and California summer you promised us two years ago?

VANDERBILT

Digging potatoes is the order of the day in this vicinity but they are not turning out as well as expected on account of the early frost and the grub worms are getting their share.

We understand that Bonnie Jowell has rented a farm near Hancock and moved his household goods and farming implements to his new place.

Miss Hazel Hoffman visited at 1. Jerry's on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Brown left Saturday for old home at Merrill where she will visit her parents and also her sister, Anna, who is very sick.

Miss Edith Carlson left on Monday for Omaha, Neb., where she will work during the winter. Her sister Judith and Luga Iversen accompanied her to the train.

Mr. Buchanan Johnson was seen on our streets Sunday looking for his little black dog which they lost somewhere in this vicinity.

De-bert Lora and Allen Wolcott called at Shad. Duck's on Sunday.

An automobile load of hunters camped near the Fourteen Mile Creek on Sunday.

Quite a number from here attended the big Farmers day at Grand Rapids on Sept. 28th and most of them think that the merchants treated them in excellent style.

Some of our young folks attended the dance at New Rome Athletic Hall Saturday night and all report a good time.

Seymour Jero visited at the Wine-garden home Sunday.

Mr. Ernest Marth has purchased a seven horse power gasoline engine. Prize cracker jack at the store.

"The more you eat the more you want."

Mrs. S. W. Brown and son Elmer were Grand Rapids shoppers Wednesday.

The Brown brothers had good luck on Sunday and shot 7 rabbits and 2 partridge.

Mrs. Jessie Bates of Grand Rapids is keeping house for her father, M. S. Wingarten who her mother is caring for her sister, who is very ill at Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Jno. Hoffman of Freeport, Ill., returned to her home Saturday. Little Andrew Brown is sick with the mumps.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth Reid were seen on our streets Wednesday.

Mr. H. S. Brown is doing some painting in district No. 6.

Mr. Oscar Brown has gone to Neokoon to look for work.

Mrs. Cora Brown is on the sick list this week.

One of Isaac Hoffman's horses got cut on the wire fence on Monday.

SIGEL

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ringer mourn the death of their only son, who was born on October 4th and died on the 7th. The parents have the sympathy of the community.

Lee Anderson submitted to an operation at the Grand Rapids hospital for appendicitis last week. He is getting along fine.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the many kind neighbors and friends who so thoughtfully extended their sympathy and assistance during the sickness and after the death of our beloved daughter. Also for the many beautiful floral offerings.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lundgren and family.
